Hempstead County Is Urged to Support Local Scout Program

W. H. McMullin, District Executive, Asserts This County Leads in "Candidates"—There Are 5,000 of Them

"Hempstead county has more boys in proportion to its population than any county in the Tex-Ark district. There are 5,000 of them—and just about 4,000 of them want to be Boy Scouts," W. H. McMullin, chief Scout executive, Texarkana, told Hope Rotary club Friday noon at Hotel Barlow.

Major Portion of U.S. Trade Is Half Way to '29 Level

120 Industrial Companies Recover—But Trend Is Irregular

A.P. MAKES SURVEY

Claude A. Jagger Opens Series of 6 Articles on Business

How does the nation stand economically? Just how far have we recovered from the depression? If business is improving in many lines, why are so many persons out of work? These are some of the questions discussed in a series of six daily articles, of which this is the first.

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER Associated Press Financial Editor NEW YORK.—(AP)—Better weather conditions during the week enabled retail trade to advance to a level 8 to 12 per cent higher than a year ago, Dun & Bradstreet reported Friday.

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Cold hard figures telling the tale of America's march out of the land of hard times indicate that the dividing line between depression and prosperity has been reached.

Statistics measuring several major aspects of economic America indicate that since the business pendulum struck bottom, it has swung up the recovery are about half way between the high level of 1929 and the low levels of three and four years ago.

Business analysts see profound significance in the fact that in many respects about half the extreme losses since the busy days seven years ago have been regained.

Setbacks Rally Strongly The Associated Press weekly index of industrial activity has risen to a point slightly above midway between the 1929 top and the lows of 1932 and 1933.

Factory employment, as measured by the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics' index, has likewise recovered approximately 50 per cent of its extreme loss from 1929 to early 1933.

In Wall street, shares listed in the Stock Exchange have recovered almost half of the billions of quoted value that were swept away in the black torrents of selling from 1929 to the summer of 1932.

The net income of corporations shows a somewhat similar comeback. The Standard Statistics Co.'s index of the earnings of 120 industrial companies came back in 1935 from less than nothing in 1932 to a level slightly more than 40 per cent of 1929.

Picture Not Entirely Bright But analysts generally acknowledge that the recovery march, impressive as it has been in some respects a struggling one. A large part of the

U.S. Supreme Court Hit by President of Arkansas Bar

"People May Finally Be Influenced to Bebel," Is His Warning

ANNUAL MEETING

Five Hope Attorneys Attend State Convention at Hot Springs

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—(AP)—C. T. Cutham, president, assailed the invalidation of New Deal legislation before the American Bar association convention here Friday.

He said: "The people may finally be influenced to rebel against the unrestricted and frequent exercise of power by the supreme court to declare acts of congress unconstitutional."

Henry B. Armistead, of Little Rock, told the bar that legislation is unnecessary to reform the illegal practices of law by laymen and lawyers.

Urges Curb on Lawyers LITTLE ROCK.—A way to supervision of the Arkansas bar through the supreme court if the legislature should fail to enact an integration plan at the request of the Arkansas Bar association.

Hope Attorneys Attend Attending the annual convention of the Arkansas bar association at Hot Springs Friday were five Hope attorneys:

Harry J. Lemley, W. S. Atkins, Albert Graves, Luke P. Monroe and Steve Carrigan.

tion was explained to the Little Rock Junior Bar Association, Thursday, by Boyle G. Clark, of Columbia, Mo., chairman of the Advisory Committee of the Missouri Bar Association.

Mr. Clark is the principal speaker Friday at the annual meeting of the Arkansas bar association in Hot Springs.

Following unsuccessful attempts to pass an integration bill through the Missouri legislature, which at one time failed by a single vote, Mr. Clark said, the Missouri bar association adopted a resolution asking the Missouri Supreme court to appoint a committee from the bar to investigate conditions among its practitioners.

The committee after extensive research reported that the supreme court had the right to control acts of lawyers in the practice of their profession and authority to prosecute lawyers for violations of the law.

Rules Recommended A comprehensive set of rules for regulation of the bar was recommended to the supreme court. Adoption of the recommendation resulted in the creation of a committee of four lawyers in each circuit court district, charged with the duty of investigating the practice of law.

A general chairman for all committees was appointed to serve with an advisory committee, appointed by the supreme court from the bar of the state and including the chairman of the judiciary committee of the house and senate.

The district committees were given the power to require attendance of principals and witnesses. All lawyers were required to pay a $3 fee to the clerk of their circuit court between January 1 and 20 of each year.

Mr. Clark said the result was not the creation of an integrated bar but that immediate results resulted in higher standards for the bar in Missouri. The purpose of the organization is not to disbar lawyers, he explained, but to give the public a good bar and protect the profession from encroachment of persons not entitled to practice law. No lawyer is disbarred when lesser discipline will prove effective, he said.

"The power and responsibility for maintaining the integrity of the bar rests with the supreme court," he said. "An enabling act is nothing more than a request from the legislature that the supreme court exercise its authority for approving rules for guidance of the bar and punishment of non-conformers."

Starts Mustache Hobby

SIBOBAN, Yugoslavia.—(AP)—Just as some persons collect coins, postage stamps or antiques, George Terzich gathers mustaches, new and old.

He returned to his home town three years ago from the United States, where he prospered. He has no relatives here, and not much use for his money, so he hit upon the hobby of mustache buying.

When Terzich meets someone with a pair of handlebars to his liking, he starts negotiations with the grower about shaving them off. Sometimes he closes the bargain for as little as 100 dinars ($2), but he paid 2,000 dinars ($40) to Yotsa Gavranski.

Manchoukuo Signs Nazi Trade Pact

Jap State Plans to Trade Soy Beans for German Machinery

TOKYO, Japan.—(AP)—Manchoukuo's first pact with any Occidental power, disclosed Friday, was a commercial agreement with Germany, signed Thursday at the Tokyo foreign office.

It was understood the treaty provides for large German purchases of Manchoukuo soy beans, while Manchoukuo will buy German machinery and other industrial products.

The pact was signed by Dr. Otto Kiep, chief of a German Oriental Economic Mission, and Hsieh Chieh Shih, Manchoukuo ambassador to Japan, which set up Manchoukuo as a state separate from China.

Only Fools Would Try to Escape—

So Says Guard at U. S. Reformatory, Where Discipline Is Mild

Second of three stories discussing life in a federal reformatory. By WILLIAM M. PINKERTON CHILLICOTHE, Ohio.—(AP)—Good morale, say a veteran "career guard" of the federal prison service, guards convicts more effectively than guns or high walls.

The authority, Capt. A. L. La Brash, began his career guarding some of the nation's hardest criminals in the Leavenworth, Kansas, penitentiary. Now he is captain of the guards watching "first offenders" in the federal industrial reformatory here.

The Chillicothe prison, built largely by its inmates, handles the most hopeful cases among men arrested for federal offenses. Through psychiatric studies and the teaching of trades, it seeks to turn convicts from the road that leads to Alcatraz, island fortress for hardened criminals.

A guard's attitude can make all the difference.

Candidates Agree to Ban Road Signs

Will Keep Highways Clear of Political Placards This Year

LITTLE ROCK.—A campaign to keep Arkansas' roadsides free of political advertisements, which was launched at a meeting of the Arkansas Roadside Council here Thursday, got off to a promising start as several candidates pledged co-operation.

Definitely and unequivocally advocating the council's resolution calling on the State Democratic Committee to co-operate were Carl E. Bailey, candidate for governor; Harvey G. Combs, who seeks the lieutenant governorship, and C. G. (Crip) Hall, in the race for secretary of state.

Others who pledged their co-operation "if the others will string along" included two gubernatorial candidates, Lee Cuzart and Ed F. McDonald; George W. Neal, candidate for secretary of state, and Brooks Norfleet of Forrest City, attorney generalship aspirant.

Suddenly it broke and fell on her, killing her instantly. She was buried in a coffin made from it.

LEPANTO, Ark.—(AP)—A report was awaited from Sheriff Duham Friday on efforts to identify members of a mob that lynched a young negro here Wednesday for attempting to attack a white woman.

The sheriff said he would report his findings to Prosecuting Attorney Denver Dudley, of Jonesboro.

Both of them termed the lynching "deplorable."

Churches in Action ATLANTA, Ga.—(AP)—Two authorities on inter-racial problems proposed new state laws and further educational work through the churches Friday to check mob violence.

R. B. Eleazer, of Atlanta, director of the Commission on Inter-Racial Cooperation, proposed statutes making it mandatory to remove trials to distant counties when mob intervention is expected.

Mrs. Jessie Daniel Ames, president of the Association of Southern Women to Prevent Lynching, said the work of the Methodist and Baptist churches was the "greatest hope."

Compensation Act Backed by Unions

Social Workers Join Labor in Behalf of Compensation Law

LITTLE ROCK.—Efforts of the Arkansas Federation of Labor to initiate a constitutional amendment that would enable the legislature to pass adequate workmen's compensation laws, were endorsed by the Arkansas Conference of Social Work at the closing session of its three-day meeting Thursday.

During the final session, H. M. Theakrey, executive secretary of the federation, warned the social workers that a petition intended to confuse voters of the state is being circulated by other interests with the ostensible purpose of aiding in passage of workmen's compensation laws, and urged them to assist in placing the original petition of the federation in the hands of voters.

He said that provisions of the second petition are deceptively similar to those of the one which labor organizations are sponsoring, but that it is more diffuse and undertakes to compel the legislature to pass certain laws. The amendment prepared by the federation would serve only as an enabling act to widen the legislature's authority in this field of legislation.

Entire expense of initiating the amendment is being borne by the labor organization.

DETROIT, Mich.—(AP)—Four robbers held up a branch of the National Bank of Detroit with machine-guns Friday and escaped with $40,000.

Plans to complete the Fitzwater No. 1 Lafferty oil test nine miles south of Hope, was announced Friday by P. A. Dulin, Sr., and Foy Hammons, who said they were representing a group of Hempstead county citizens interested in seeing the test completed.

The plan is to raise $2,500 to purchase leases on a spread of 500 acres surrounding the test. This amount, they said, would enable the group not only to obtain the leases but would supply ample capital for operating expenses.

If necessary the test will go down to depth of 4,000 feet or deeper, they said.

Mr. Dulin has been appointed trustee of the group, and Mr. Hammons will approve all expenditures. They said that all money turned over to them would be spent for completion of the test.

"No outsiders are included in the plan. It is purely a co-operative agreement among Hempstead county citizens who believe that a deeper test will result in development of an oil producing area for this section," they declared.

They said that arrangements had been made with Mr. Fitzwater to use his materials and to employ the crew at the test, which will be divided into day and night shifts so that the test may be completed as soon as possible.

Legal papers have been drawn to transfer the leases on the 500 acres surrounding the test to P. A. Dulin, Sr., as trustee of the Hempstead county group of citizens.

Mr. Dulin said that a canvass of Hope citizens would be made to subscribe additional memberships as the balance of the necessary $2,500 may be obtained.

It was also announced by Mr. Dulin and Mr. Hammons that the test would be cored all the way to avoid overlooking possible producing sands.

"The belief still exists with us that we have oil but have not drilled deep enough for it," they said.

The old F. W. Martin test, only a few hundred feet away, was abandoned some time ago after much difficulty with equipment. The Martin test went down 2,400 feet where a favorable showing of oil was discovered—but the test was never completed.

The Fitzwater test was temporarily abandoned several weeks ago at 2,100 feet when salt water was encountered. Since then it was announced that the hole would be drilled deeper but that plan fell through because of insufficient financial backing.

Mr. Dulin and Mr. Hammons asked that it be plainly stated that the present set-up to drill deeper is not promotional, money-making scheme—but an effort to bring in a producer.

Mineral Booms In Malay SINGAPORE.—(AP)—World-wide demand for ilmenite, the mineral from which is derived titanium tetrachloride, used to produce naval and aerial smoke screens, is bringing prosperity to hitherto poverty stricken native miners of Malay.

They are working night and day to cope with the demand.

The geological survey of the Federated Malay States reports that whereas only 50 tons were exported from all of Malaya in 1934, nearly 2,500 tons were sent out in 1935 from the state of Perak alone.

Ilmenite is the main constituent of anatag, a by-product of the tin mines. Large quantities also are found in India where, it is reported, production has doubled in two years.

Wasson Declines to Be a Candidate

Bailey Opens Campaign Headquarters in Little Rock Hotel

LITTLE ROCK.—State Bank Commissioner Marion Wasson is believed to have become the first prospective candidate for governor in the state's history to proclaim publicly that his chances for election were nil, when he issued a statement Thursday saying he would not become a candidate because he believes he could not be elected.

"I have never been, am not now, and never expect to be, a candidate for governor or any other public office," Mr. Wasson said.

"I am making this state for the reason that a few people of the state have spoken to me about running for governor and because my name has appeared in news stories as a potential candidate."

"There are two reasons for my not being a candidate. First, I do not believe that I could be elected, and second, I would not want the office if I could be elected."

Mr. Wasson was appointed bank commissioner by Governor Futrell in January, 1933, under an agreement that he would be permitted to return to his banking business at Fayetteville after a few months.

The subsequent bank crisis and the highway refunding program caused him to change his plans and to continue as state bank commissioner and member of the refunding board.

Attorney General Carl E. Bailey, who announced his candidacy for governor two weeks ago, has opened headquarters at the New Capital hotel, Markham and Louisiana streets.

Mr. Bailey said preliminary campaign work will be carried on from the headquarters several weeks and that a campaign manager will be selected within a few weeks.

Robert Bailey of Russellville filed his party loyalty pledge and paid the ballot fee as a candidate for lieutenant governor at the office of Harvey G. Combs, secretary of the Democratic State Committee.

Charles E. Parker, candidate for re-nomination for state auditor, filed his party pledge and paid the ballot fee.

Your Baby's Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

The mother returns wholly, in most instances, to normal condition six to eight weeks after childbirth. During this time, rest and quiet are important.

Doctors differ as to whether the mother should lie flat on her back during the first two weeks or take a moderate amount of exercise. Doctors nowadays are inclined to allow more freedom.

About the fourth day the mother may begin light exercise. First, she may sit up in bed and increase her activity gradually until she can get into a chair on the 10th or 11th day. It is not advisable for the mother who leaves the hospital on the 10th to the 12th day to walk up three flights of steps to her apartment, if she lives in an apartment building. If possible, someone should carry her.

If she must walk, she should do so slowly, and rest frequently. It is usually best for the mother to leave the hospital in the afternoon, so that she can go home and get right in bed. A woman who has just had a baby should not attempt to walk up steps until the end of the third week, and she should not go out on the street until the fourth week.

Of course, women of different races and of different spheres of life have different habits in this regard. Many peasant women in European countries begin work three or four days after childbirth and feel no bad effects.

Many women are inclined to overdo the social side of the situation. They should avoid visitors, however, or make the stay of visitors short during the first few weeks. Long telephone calls frequently are more boring and weakening than actual conversations with visitors.

Persons with colds or infections should never visit a woman who has just had a baby, and certainly should be kept out of any contact with the baby or the baby's room.

If the mother herself develops a cold, she should always cover her mouth with a handkerchief or mask when nursing or bathing the baby.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

You must wake and call me early.
Call me early, mother dear:
Tomorrow'll be the happiest time
Of all the glad New Year.
Of all the glad New Year, Mother.
The maddest, merriest day.
For I'm to be Queen of the May,
Mother.

I'm to be Queen of the May."

But the little girl in "The May Queen" died. How we used to cry over her.

Today the child is Queen of the May, or King of the May, in a far different sense. Sense, it happens, is the word. Sense instead of sentiment.

In all the thousands of years of so-called civilization it is incredible that until the last fifty years the child was considered the least of man's responsibilities and that only in the past twenty-five years have the humanities touched the underprivileged one. It has been only a dozen years, roundly speaking, since national consciousness has awakened to "duty" toward the child.

The King and Queen of the May have traveled far to their crowning.

However, like all royalty, these children must live in homes. And although the May Pole is all very well, it lasts but a day. After all, it is but a rally and a reminder. The idea is to give impetus to general welfare both outside and inside the home. This year the Children's Bureau, now sponsoring the movement begun by the American Child Health Association, has chosen as its slogan "Health and Security for Every Child."

Most Important Factors in Welfare of Children

Naturally the parents' part concerns chiefly the health of the child. Security, too, of course, but mainly in a social sense. Economically the parent does the best he can.

In their order I give the things I consider necessary to the immediate welfare of the young child.

Decent housing and sanitation.

Appropriate food for his age.

Cleanliness of person and surroundings.

Sleep.

Regular elimination.

Fresh air, sunshine, and room to play outdoors (corollary of Number One).

Contentment and happiness in home life.

Necessary medical advice and treatment.

That last I had thought of putting first. Indeed, all of the above should be first, because they are so co-related and necessary to well-being it is difficult to rate them as to value.

And here, may I be permitted to add a thought? I suggest that on some not too far-away May Day, funds may be found to put into the hands of every mother in America, an authoritative booklet instructing her in essentials of child health: that all objections to such a procedure may be removed and that at last we may call ourselves really civilized.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

If you don't like to look the inexplicable in the eye, I suggest that you stay away from Hamlin Garland's "Forty Years of Psychic Research" (Macmillan: $3).

Here is a book that will leave you absolutely stumped. It is by all odds the most sober, matter-of-fact study of supernatural phenomena that I have ever seen, and it presents a number of seemingly indisputable facts which cannot be explained on the basis of anything science now knows.

Mr. Garland, one of America's most distinguished novelists, began examining psychic phenomena back in the '90s, and he has been at it ever since. His findings are weird and uncanny—and, what is more, they are convincing.

Let it be said at once that they have not made a spiritualist out of him. He does not believe that any of the queer manifestations he has seen came from the spirit world—or, indeed, that there is a spirit world for them to come from.

He is convinced, however, that there are odd forces in this world that we do not begin to understand; that such things as ectoplasm, for instance, telekinesis, thought transference, and second sight do actually exist.

Mr. Garland took elaborate pains to avoid being fooled. Some of his records—if you are an ordinary, skeptical citizen—will utterly dumfounded you, so completely does all chance of fraud seem to have been eliminated.

Hollywood

By Paul Harrison

HOLLYWOOD—The best directorial show in town is Fritz Lang. He is more colorful, more meticulous, than Von Sternberg.

Lang is the Austrian who made "M" and "Metropolis" (most notably) abroad, and now is directing "Mob Rule," his first picture in the United States. He is a stocky man of 46, who looks like a character actor and wears monocles—one for the left eye, one for the right, though never both at the same time. Neither stress nor shock nor fear from a six-foot platform ever has jarred a monocle from its place below his scowling brow.

He thinks nothing of rehearsing a scene 10 times and then shooting it 15 times. He also is a great one for freak camera angles—shooting up, shooting down, shooting through the eyelashes of Sylvia Sydney.

During a scene of great emotional intensity, a player has only to watch Mr. Lang and do likewise. He sobs and moans; he chews his knuckles in anguish; he grimaces and grinds his teeth. Lang does more acting than all the rest of the company.

Highly Respected
If players didn't respect him as a fine director, he'd probably drive them crazy. But they do admire him. Marlene Dietrich often treks out to the M-G-M lot to sit behind the action and watch him for hours. So does Ruth Chatterton. Miss Chatterton also has taken Mr. Lang for hops in her airplane.

Nothing upsets Miss Sydney. She knits. She is well along now on the fourth sweater knitted during this pic-

One of the Oddities in American Justice

I watched and listened for half an hour while Miss Sidney knitted and read lines aloud from a script open on her knees. Her voice will be heard while the camera pans the distraught faces of several defendants in court.

The shot was made so often that even the spectators became jittery. Not so Miss Sidney. Over and again she spoke her lines. "I saw him in the burning window (knit three, purr one), behind the bars (cast on two, knit six). They were throwing stones (knit four, purr one)! It was horrible!"

Sons of the Famous
At Solznik International you can find three sons of celebrities. You're likely to see them all together, if it's lunch time. Ring Lardner, Jr., is one. He reads and writes synopsis for the stories, and expects to do screen plays.

Next is Harry Leon Wilson, Jr., 22. He reads and writes synopses for the story department. On the side, he plays poker and studies poisons, the latter for research on some fictioneer he intends to do.

Feodor Chaliapin, Jr., son of the singer, is in the research department and expects to go back to acting when he learns to control his Russian accent. He's 30, blond and bulky, and has acted in French, German, and American silent pictures.

Exclusive
Katharine Hepburn is this way and that about attracting attention. No visitors are allowed on the set while she's working, yet she has taken the studio restaurant in plain sight of everybody. She sits at the directors' table in Mary of Scotland costume and bedroom slippers.

Before the camera, though, she can't stand gawking. The star has even asked spare technicians to leave the set. The ones who had to remain were commanded to turn their backs as the camera recorded an especially trying scene.

Safety First Chief
The Warner Studio has a chief of medical service and accident prevention. His name is Paul MacWilliams and, appropriately enough, he used to be a professional stunt man. He also worked nights in the accident room of a large local hospital.

One day, stunting for Mack Sennett, he fell 50 feet when a rope broke. That put him into the hospital as a patient and not an employee. During three months of convalescence, he got the

Atlanta Is Baten by Williams Nine

Elliott Keeps Visitors' Nine Hits Safely Scattered Thursday

The Williams Lumber company baseball team pounded two Atlanta, (Texas) pitchers for 14 hits Thursday and won its second game of the season, 11 to 2.

Every member of the Lumberjacks except Hamster and Robins got at least one safe blow. Zinn and B. Schooley led the batting attack with three hits apiece.

Although Elliott allowed the visitors nine bingles, he kept them well scattered and was effective in the pinches. Defensive play of Urban at shortstop and Ramsey at second was outstanding.

Proceeds, after expenses were paid, were donated to the Hope Boys Band uniform fund.

The Lumberjacks go to Taylor, southern Columbia county, for a game

Night

Thank God for night—with its great gift of sleep—
More wonderful than all His gifts to men!
For said that walk the dream-ways and that keep
Their wide-eyed watch until dawn breaks again;
Thank God for blessed silence down the land,
More soothing than the drip of summer rain;
For darkness—soft and cool as some dear hand
Laid on a forehead feverish with pain,
Oh, only those who carry sleepless scars
Can know how sweet sleep is that comes at last,
And only the eyes that have looked long at stars
Have learned night's secret as it marches past;
Have learned to know how quiet God must keep
To guide on earth through stars—that men may sleep.—Selected.

Mrs. George S. Spragins and Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Spragins have as house guests, Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Green of Manitoba, Miss, and Julian B. Green of Walnut Ridge, Ark.

Paul Dean Beats
Giants by 3 to 2Yields 11 Hits, But Keeps
Them Scattered—First Season Win

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—(AP)—Paul, younger of the Dean brothers, pitched his first victory of the season Thursday as the St. Louis Cardinals again defeated the New York Giants, 3 to 2. Paul allowed 11 hits, but Joe Moore, while the Cardinals got only five safeties but the Cards' blows were better bunched and longer. The Cardinals, in the second, scored two runs. Johnny Mize doubled and after Charlie Gelbert got the only walk of the game, Leo Durocher hit a two-baser to score them. A Smith who started for the Giants worked six innings before being taken out for a pinch hitter. His successor, Harry Gumbert, was hit for a homer by Mize in the seventh and this run provided the victory. Joe Moore drove in both the Giants' runs. After Bartell had singled, Moore doubled for his third hit of the day to score the shortstop. Moore scored Rippel with a single in the ninth and then the younger Dean whiffed Pinch Hitter Mark Koenig for the last out of the game with the tying run on base.

Jesus Teaches Forgiveness, Humility and Gratitude.
Text: Luke 17:1-19
International Uniform Sunday School
Lesson for May 3

It is the quality of the teaching of Jesus that it meets every aspect of human life and need. There is no social relationship of life to which it does not apply; yet this teaching does not center around a social philosophy and a social system.

While it insists upon the character and duties of the individual in his social relationships, it is equally insistent upon the foundations on which personal life and character must be built. It relates to the problems of the individual in his personal life and character, as well as in his relationships.

There is the master of forgiveness. It is a twofold thing. It has its bearings upon the one who is forgiven as well as upon the one who forgives.

It makes a great deal of difference in life whether men live upon a principle of harshness and execution, with no element of consideration, with no element of consideration and mercy, or whether they meet one another on terms of consideration and kindness.

But apart from its social aspect, forgiveness has an important bearing on the individual life. No man can harbor resentment in his heart without suffering from it. To harbor hate or vengeance in one's heart is to crowd out the kinder virtues.

Jesus taught this with the most careful insistence. And the ruth of his teaching concerning forgiveness is borne out in the whole range of human life and history. We sometimes say of a man, "He is a good hater," as if there were something strong and fine in that; but when we turn from a man who is a "good hater" to contemplate the figure of a man such as Abraham Lincoln, with a large spirit of magnanimity toward his foes and his critics, we see how immeasurably such a man towers above those who are strong only in the intensity of their evil passions.

So, also, in this matter of humility. The man who swaggers in the consciousness of his own greatness is a sorry figure compared with the man whose ideals and standards of life are so high that, with all his attainments, he is ever conscious of never quite measuring up to the ideal.

The man of gratitude is in the same place with forgiveness and humility. There are those who take what is given them, or what comes to them without any sense of thankfulness. They act as if other people were in the world only to wait upon them and to serve them.

How different is the soul whose response to life is one of gratitude for everything that is worthwhile! How different both the inward soul and the outward day for the man who meets the sunshine in the morning with thankfulness to God because of its light and warmth, and who goes through all the day with an eager response of soul.

There is a capacity for life and soul development in such a man that is impossible in the one who is hemmed in with his own narrow nature and who never rises above the level of his own narrow passions and his cramping selfishness.

Time convicts become melancholy. Then they are surly, resentful and apt to bear a grudge. Men in such a mood can be handled with tact without disrupting prison discipline. But riding a man in that mood, driving him to his tasks, may start the convict's mind on a line of thought which may result in a "sit-crazy" convict running amuck and attacking guards and other inmates—hopeless as such a performance is.

Sore shoulders can cut down the horse-power on the farm considerably in the spring, but this trouble might be avoided by correctly fitting the collar and adjusting the harness.

A good heavy leather collar is best. If the collar is fitted properly, there should be barely room for the flat hand to pass between the collar and the windpipe, and for the finger tips to pass at the side of the neck just above the shoulder points.

Improper adjustment of the harness may cause trouble. After a collar has been fitted the harness should not be allowed to drop at the bottom but should fit closely up to the collar. The harness should not be too tight at the top or it will cause pinching on the side of the neck. One short trace, causing undue strain on one shoulder, will cause weakness on a young or unseasoned animal.

A little time given in special attention to the shoulders in the field during the early spring is time well used. The collar should be raised and the sweat, dirt, and dead hair removed from both shoulders and collar. It is especially important that the neck and shoulders be cleaned and given a chance to dry and cool off during the noon hour.

It is well to clean the shoulders carefully after the day's work and wash them with warm water and castile soap and then rinse with cold water to which a small amount of salt has been added. This treatment is especially good for the first few weeks of work of animals with tender, unseasoned shoulders.

A bruised or chafed spot should be washed morning, noon and evening with warm water and castile soap and then bathed with a solution of 1/2 ounce sugar of lead, 1/2 ounce of zinc sulphate in one pint of water. The wound should then be covered with a powdered mixture of equal parts of alum and boric acid.

Hog Stock Scarce
Supplies of registered purebred hog breeding stock is scarce. There has been a heavy demand for the replacement of stock—both purebred and high-grade—since the upturn in hog prices and larger available feed supplies. It looks like a good time for someone, who is a good judge of breeding stock and who likes to give more than ordinary care in developing pigs, to make some extra money selling breeding stock during the next few years.

Feeder pigs of quality which are being sought in the state by corn belt feeders are demonstrating the value of good breeding. Thrift in these 60 to 90 pounds pigs is also a premium. More rapid gains are made on corn, pasture, and a protein supplement than on corn alone. Last fall's pigs may be made ready for market on the limited corn supply if pasture and a supplement are used. Cotton seed meal and tankage make a splendid supplement, or the meal may be used alone if not more of it than nine per cent of the total grain is used.

population continues to live on the credit of its government or on the fat of former years.

Uncle Sam has borrowed some $13,000,000,000, chiefly from the banks, since 1929, and still is borrowing. President Roosevelt recently indicated that some 18,900,000 persons were living partly or wholly on relief.

Overcoming the lag in employment presents a major problem. While factory employment shows considerable recovery, idleness in many lines connected with building and construction, and in the service industries—which include everything from manuring to chimney sweeping—remains of huge proportions.

But business analysts see hope because residential building is running nearly triple the levels of 1913, although still only around a quarter of 1929. Optimists expect the service industries to boom with the coming of broader recovery.

Economic Controversy
The route forward from here is nonetheless befogged in mists of economic and political controversy. Some advocate a shorter work week to combat growing use of labor saving machinery. Others see the growing government debt as undermining confidence and retarding business enterprise.

Yet none gainsays the progress already made, and hopes are high that the nation may be moving forward into a new era of good times in which prosperity will be better balanced and of a more abiding nature than that of 1928-29. Few attempts to predict how the transition will come. The post war depression of the early 1920's ended with a building boom and the rapid growth of the automobile industry. Earlier depressions ended with railway building booms opening up new territory.

Frontier Gone
America no longer has a geographical frontier, but business optimists assert there is no foreseeable limit to its economic frontier. Leaders of the automobile industry anticipate the best year since 1929. The use of electric power has exceeded 1929 to register unprecedented levels. Industrial laborers are busy developing new and better products.

While controversy swirls about the problems of the proper spheres of government and private industry, and the measures desirable or feasible to control business and credit and to avoid the pitfalls of the past, economic America marches on.

In the second of this series of articles Frederick R. Gardner, Associated Press business writer in Washington, discusses in detail the problems of employment.

Barkley Again to Speak for Party

Kentucky Senator's Golden Voice to Sound Democratic Key Note

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A stalwart Kentucky answer to the Republican challenge voiced by a rugged Oregonian. Two weeks after Senator Frederick Steiwer gives the keynote speech at the Republican convention in Cleveland, Senator Alben W. Barkley will sound the Democratic call to arms at the Philadelphia convention, which opens June 23.

A seasoned campaigner and a frequent senate defender of the Roosevelt administration, the senior Kentucky senator keeps a powerful, resonant voice virtually always in tune for oratorical action.

Attacked Hoover
Withdrawing as a possible favorite son candidate in 1932 to support the nomination of Mr. Roosevelt, Barkley was selected as the temporary chairman of the national convention at Chicago.

His keynote speech there was a blistering attack on the Hoover administration, and he followed it up with a vigorous campaign for the election of Roosevelt and Garner. Barkley, a direct, seething-style speaker, was in his teens when he began winning gold medals in oratory and debate. In college he was a chamption debater, a prize winning runner and jumper, a football and baseball player.

Up From the Ranks
Later he studied law, learned shorthand and became a court reporter where he made the contacts that gave him political ambitions. He was a prosecuting attorney and county judge before election to congress in 1913. He was a member of the house continuously until 1927 when he entered the senate. A man of powerful, compact physique, he handles with apparent tirelessness his work as assistant Democratic leader in the senate and assignments on several committees.

In the blue grass country, Barkley is known as an "iron-lunged" orator. He has delivered 10 to 12 campaign speeches in a single day.

An advocate of prohibition for years, he nevertheless as a party loyalist seconded the nomination of Alfred E. Smith in 1928.

Honors War Pigeons

LILLE, France—(AP)—A monument to World war carrier pigeons has been dedicated here. The ceremony included release of hundreds of birds from a church tower when the bells pealed.

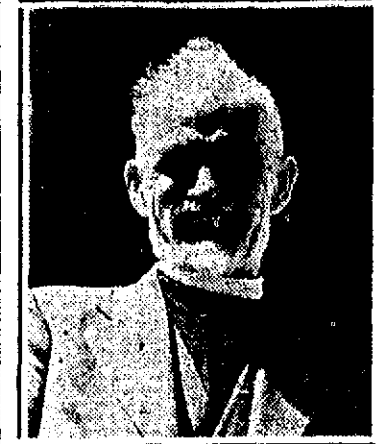

Cuts Water Rate

JERUSALEM (Palestine)—The municipal council here has reduced the water rate to 40 mils a cubic meter. Until the new water system was started, the rate was 80 mils. It was cut to 60 January 1.

Bishop of Wall Street Scolds Bulls, Bears and Lambs Alike

NEW YORK—The "Bishop of Wall Street" is about to deliver his daily

"I'm just a zero."

sermon. Shadowed from the left by the U. S. Sub-treasury, symbol of money, and from the right by the headquarters of J. P. Morgan & Co., symbol of money power, the Rev.

"Divine Dynamiter" blasts Wall Street before his noon-day, open-air congregation.

James Jefferson Davis, D.D. ("Divine Dynamiter" he calls himself) nouns the fruit-erate pulpit f his open-air church at Wall and Broad Streets, heart of New York's financial district. Beside him is an American flag on a standard as he turns and points to the New York Stock Exchange, behind him.

"Got stuck, did you?"

"Want to see Monte Carlo?" he demands of the several hundred Wall Street clerks, messengers, brokers and traders who form his daily noon-hour audience.

"Don't go to Europe! There's the greatest gambling Casino in the world right in front of you. There's more gambling done there than in Monte Carlo. That's where the lambs are fleeced."

The peppery little Bishop of Wall Street has been telling his casual congregations that for nearly nine years, every day except Sunday, summer and winter, rain or shine. He doesn't hold with gambling and considers stock market speculation one of the most vicious forms of the get-rich-quick urge. Several times J. P. Morgan him-and a neatly clipped mustache. When he talks, he chuckles and laughs, rolling his eyes in roguish sidelong glances and punctuating his sallies at the gambling gentry with hearty pokes in the ribs of his listener. This reporter can testify that "Daddy" Hall packs a punch.

Born in a country town near Birmingham, Ala., where he only wore shoes on Sunday because "they last longer that way," his schooling was self-obtained. Forty years ago he was ordained in the Protestant Episcopal church. During his career he has taught country school, was a prison chaplain for seven years, and his done rescue mission work. Some years ago friends sent him abroad, where he preached on the Mount of Olives.

In his animadversions against gambling, he does not single out the money-changers for special condemnation. He considers a laboring man who squanders a nicker dollar on a sweepstake ticket just as far on the road to perdition as any Wolf of Wall Street.

He doesn't talk much against capitalism.

"I can't talk about economics," he says. "These people know more about it than I do. And I can't talk to gamblers about heaven when they're not going there unless they mend their ways. So I talk about getting the devil out of them, and about loving their own wives instead of their secretaries."

Mr. Hall's favorite text is "Be Sure Your Sins Will Find You Out."

"I'm just a zero," he declares, "but a zero on the right side of a figure can mean a lot. And I'm on the right side of God."

Right now his heart is pretty heavy at the sight of so many people taking a renewed interest in stock market speculation. He hates to see the "sheep running to be shorn," but has little sympathy with them.

"Got stuck, did you?" he demands angrily. "Well, what did you go in there for? I preach to the Wall Street bulls, the bears, the wildcats and the suckers—and most of them are suckers."

Young Lady's Painful Condition Relieved by Cardui

For over fifty years, Cardui has been recommended by mothers to their daughters for the relief of functional pains at certain times and as a tonic to improve nutrition.

"I was very weak and nervous when a young girl at home," writes Mrs. J. H. Daniel, of Biloxi, Miss. "My mother was so uneasy about me, she did not ask me to help with the work. My mother decided to give me Cardui and she didn't want me to miss a dose, after she found it was helping me. I gained and it was splendid how I responded to the treatment. After six bottles of Cardui, I was regular and the pain and trouble stopped. I grew strong."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

Introducing a New Used Car Standard of Specified Quality

WITH Ford Dealers, the day of the "used car" is gone. You are now offered an exclusive new standard of automotive quality in "R&G" cars.

This new term—"R&G"—stands for Renewed and Guaranteed. It means that each car offered under it must meet a rigid set of specifications as to mechanical condition and appearance. And the result is a product so fine that it can be sold with a written guarantee of "Satisfaction or Your Money Back!"

Under this guarantee, you are the judge of the car's quality. After purchase, you may drive it two days, and put it to any driving test you please. If it fails to measure up to your expectations in any way, you may return it to your Ford dealer's, and have your money refunded in full—cheerfully, no questions asked.

In addition, you will receive a written service warranty as a further protection. This double guarantee removes forever the elements of doubt and uncertainty that have troubled buyers of used cars for years.

The R&G emblem is the mark of an exclusive Ford dealer value. Go to your Ford dealer now, and see his R&G display. Your present car will be accepted at its highest cash value—you may not need any money to drive away a car that you can be really proud to own.
